A DISPATCH from Munroe, Louisiana, of the 6th, says: The Deputy Sheriff of Lin-coln Parish came in this afternoon with con Parish came in this afternoon with the damp atmosphere is probably the cause. District Judge, for the arrest of Marshal Selye and Licutenant Hodgson, for contempt of court, in refusing to obey a writ of Aubess corpus, issued by Judge Trimble in the case of the prisoners from Chaiborne Parish, has week. Lieut. Hodgson was arrested at the Ouachita House. Marshal Seyle, who was in the hotel, made his secape. The Sheriff's posed divided and went in different directions. One squad went to the house of J. T. Ludeling, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State. One of the posse states that the Chief Justice met them on the piazza. He said Selye was not in his house; he had been there half an hour before, but had gone off, he did not know where. Judge Ludeling soil Selye came to ask for legal advice, and he advised him to surrender, and that, owsoid Selye came to ask for legal advice, and he advised him to surrender, and that, owing to his position in the State, he did not want anything to do with it. The poses insisted on scarching the house, when Judge Ludeling showed them around down stairs. The door leading up stairs was found locked, but the poses insisted on going up. After some delay, Mrs. Ludeling produced the key, when the poses scarched up stairs, but found not Seyle. They obtained a candle, and in the garret, dark as midnight, they discovered Seyle, his clothes being badly soiled with plaster. Selye surrendered and marched down stairs, almost fainting, when Judge Ludeling refreshed him with a glass of brandy. Seyle begged for protection, and when told by young Sholars, the son of old Dr. Sholars, arrested by Selye last week, "you treated my old father like a dog, sir,"
